

The Berkeley Chapter of the Society for Conservation Biology announces

The 5th Annual
Bay Area Conservation Biology Symposium

Saturday, February 1, 2003
8:00am -7:30pm

Valley Life Sciences Building
University of California, Berkeley

This one-day symposium invites students, faculty, and local organizations to present and discuss recent findings in the growing field of conservation biology. A major goal of the symposium is to provide a forum for Bay Area graduate students to receive feedback on ongoing research projects, and submissions from graduate students are strongly encouraged. This annual meeting has become a valuable opportunity to increase communication and collaboration among Bay Area scientists, practitioners, and policy makers.

Featured keynote speakers:

Peter Kareiva, The Nature Conservancy
Tyrone Hayes, U.C. Berkeley

Abstract submission date for presentations and posters:
December 15st, 2002 (EXTENDED)

For information on on-line submission and registration, please visit <http://nature.berkeley.edu/consbio/symposium>
or email sreed@nature.berkeley.edu or abidlack@nature.berkeley.edu

Please post and distribute.