EDITOR'S ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In bygone days, when editors of entomological journals were masters of the entire field of entomology, and therefore could exert the quality control necessary to assure that material they published met suitably high standards, it was unnecessary for them to seek editorial assistance from colleagues. Now, however, this is no longer so: most editors are competent to pass judgment on the substance of relatively few typescripts that cross their desks. Thus, for advice on the scientific merits of these typescripts, they have had to turn to an array of colleagues, each of whom has the expert knowledge necessary to judge and suggest improvements to papers in his particular area of interest. These reviewers ("referees" in common parlance) act on behalf of an editor, and provide him with written statements, documenting their recommendations. Because of the importance of thorough reviews to the reputation of a scientific journal, it seems appropriate that such contributions be acknowledged. Therefore, I take pleasure in expressing my gratitude to the individuals whose names and addresses are listed below, for assisting me this past year in fulfilling my responsibilities to the readership of Quaestiones Entomologicae.

- R. H. Cobben, Department of Entomology, Agricultural University, Wageningen, The Netherlands.
 D. A. Craig, Department of Entomology, University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.
 P. J. Darlington, Jr., 71 Juniper Rd., Belmont, Massachusetts.
 T. L. Erwin, Department of Entomology, Smithsonian Institution, United States National Museum of Natural History, Washington, D. C., U.S.A.
 H. E. Evans, Department of Zoology and Entomology, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado, U.S.A.
 W. G. Evans, Department of Entomology, University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.
 S. E. Neff, Water Resources Laboratory, University of Louisville, Louisville, Kentucky, U.S.A.
 G. R. Noonan, Milwaukee Public Museum, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, U.S.A.
 D. Pimentel, Department of Entomology, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, U.S.A.
 H. Reichardt, Museu de Zoologia da Universidade de Sao Paulo, Sao Paulo, Brasil.
 F. N. Young, Zoology Department, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana, U.S.A.

Henri Goulet, Extension Entomologist of my Department, provided French translations of abstracts for most of the papers, often on rather short notice. His efforts are much appreciated.

I will also take this opportunity to thank John S. Scott, George Braybrook, and Danny Shpeley, members of the technical staff of this Department, for their assistance in preparation of illustrations, indexing, and other aspects involved in production of the journal.

With regret, I note that Susan Hamilton, who served so ably as Publications Manager for the past three years, has left our staff to devote full time to her home and young family. For her cheerfully rendered services, I thank Mrs. Hamilton, and welcome to the staff her replacement, Nancy Olthuis, who has done most of the production work on the October issue.
